

DROP THE BOMB

It is with great pleasure that we are finally able to announce a brand new weekly CS:GO show brought to you by your beloved CS:GO casting duo HenryG & Sadokist. The duo, known for their on-camera chemistry and humour, are obnoxiously open about their opinions regarding almost every aspect of Counter-Strike.

The days of webcam broadcasts are over; Drop the Bomb will be brought to you live from a European based studio using industry level equipment and production standards. Each week we will be tackling the most important and sometimes controversial talking points that the game and scene has to offer. On top of that, we will feature regular game-play highlights and strategies, as well as interviews with professional players, teams, and personalities.

What's more? For the first time on a live podcast, Drop the Bomb will bring you in-depth behind the scenes coverage from events via exclusive prerecorded content by our producer, Tom Newman. Team and player profiles, documentaries, interviews, and event tours - we aim to provide the community with the most complete coverage found anywhere in eSports!

Thank you to everyone that has made this dream of ours a reality. Our first season of six episodes will start on the evening of August the 16th. Follow @dropthebombtv on twitter for all you need to know on the lead up to the debut!
